

Privacy Policy

When you sign up for our newsletter, we collect personal information, such as your name and email address, which we use to keep you informed about stuff you've asked to hear about. We use a third party provider, MailChimp, to deliver our newsletter. We gather statistics about email opening using industry standard technologies to help us monitor and improve our newsletters. You can unsubscribe at any time by following the link at the bottom of any email you receive.

We use a third party service, Google Analytics, to collect standard internet log information and details of visitor behaviour patterns. We do this to help us understand how many visitors we receive and which parts of our site they visit. This information is processed in a way which does not identify anyone.

All personal information is used and stored securely and we absolutely guarantee that your information will NEVER be shared with any outside organisation.

Cookies

We use cookies to improve your browser experience. Cookies are small text files that are stored in your browser by websites that you visit. Cookies usually contain a website and an identifier.

Cookies do lots of different jobs, like letting you navigate between pages efficiently, remembering your preferences, and generally improve the user experience. For example, if you fill out a contact form, we use cookies to remember your details for a next time.

You can prevent cookies from being placed in your browser settings, though this may affect the functionality of websites that you visit.

If you want to delete cookies in your browser, check this guide: How do I delete cookies?
